

Notice to Those Providing Training in the Wilson Reading System[®], Foundations[®], or Just Words[®]

The Wilson Language Training Corporation (WLT) owns the trademarks Wilson[®], Wilson Reading System[®], Foundations[®], Just Words[®], Wilson Fluency[®], as well as other related trademarks. In education, the name Wilson is synonymous with high quality products and services with a history of success in providing educators with the resources they need to help their students become fluent, independent readers. WLT trademarks are extremely valuable because they represent the standards of excellence and consistent quality associated with WLT.

Unless granted a license or written permission, it is an infringement of our intellectual property rights for someone other than WLT to provide Wilson[®] professional development or create Wilson[®] training materials.

We enforce our intellectual property rights to prevent others from delivering training in Wilson products or creating Wilson training materials so that we may ensure such products and services meet our quality criteria, consistently identify our products, and are faithful to the principles of instruction that have made the Wilson Reading System[®], Foundations[®], and Just Words[®] work for so many struggling readers.